

Rural Health Information Network Directory 2003

The Rural Health Information Network initiative is an effort of the Health Resources and Services Administration's Office of Rural Health Policy (ORHP) and undertaken by the Center for Rural Health at the University of North Dakota. The goal of this initiative is to provide a coordinated means of identifying and communicating rural health issues across various associations, agencies and researchers with an interest in rural health.

As part of this effort, HRSA is pleased to present you with the 2003 edition of the Rural Health Information Network (RHIN) Directory. The RHIN Directory was designed to facilitate information sharing and networking among individuals and organizations with interests in rural health care in America. The directory is also available for download from both the ORHP Web site at <http://ruralhealth.hrsa.gov> as well as the Rural Assistance Center Web site at <http://www.raconline.org>

The directory lists 600 organizations, businesses and offices, largely in the Nation's capital area, with members who are interested in rural health issues. These include associations, foundations, and Federal offices. These organizations have indicated an interest in participating in the Capital Area Rural Health Roundtable forums. Additionally, the directory provides a list of federally funded research centers conducting rural health services research, as well as State offices of rural health. Further, we have included listings for the congressional staff of both the Senate Rural Health Caucus and the House Rural Health Care Coalition.
